PHO (Vietnamese Rice Noodle Soup)

Pronounced like "Fo" or "Fuh" (the 'Ph' is pronounced with a 'F' sound for English speakers) is a Vietnamese noodle soup consisting of a fragrant slow cooked beef broth, linguine-shaped rice noodles, various herbs, and meat. It is a popular street food in Vietnam and is our staple food in the Lu Family household. We are happy that we are finally able to share this family tradition with you. Pho is richly seasoned and deeply comforting to eat.

PHO is Gluten Free.

BANH MI (Vietnamese Baguette Sandwich) (Sandwich includes shrimp chips)

Pronounced exactly like it is spelled, it is a Vietnamese term for all types of bread, but today is commonly known as the Vietnamese sandwich that consists of a French baguette served with fillings such as cilantro, pickled carrots, pickled daikon, jalapeños, and protein. It is also seasoned with white pepper and a dash of soy sauce for taste.

Jalapeños are added unless otherwise requested.
